
Thirty years ago I came to live here in the Sonoran Desert. As pirates do, I set out looking for treasure. I used to think that gold, silver, and jewels were the only treasures. Here in Tucson, in the desert I've discovered another, more important treasure. It is something that all desert dwellers value.

Do you know what this treasure is?

- What can be found deep underground, but also falls from the sky?
- What do animals in the desert need more than food?
- What is something used to wash, brush, and clean everyday?
- What do we all need and use and can't live without? That's right... WATER!

I have discovered that water is our most precious treasure in the desert. Living in the desert means that we must find ways to practice water conservation and help save our most important treasure.

Join me, Captain Pete and together we will find many ways to conserve Tucson's water treasure... at home and everywhere we go!

Water - Treasure it!

Good Luck!... Captain Pete
