

National Conversation on Climate Action

Be a part of the Conversation!

Tucson will host a “Spotlight Conversation on Climate Action” as part of an elite group of 10 communities that were selected by ICLEI-Local Governments for Sustainability to be highlighted nationally.

The goals of the Conversation are to educate the community about the challenges of climate change in southern Arizona, and to discuss the community’s values, perceptions, and priorities regarding climate change mitigation and adaptation.

The discussion will help inform the City’s General Plan update, the County’s Comprehensive Plan revision and the University’s President’s Climate Commitment Plan. The Tucson Community Conversation on Climate Action will feature presentations from local experts followed by Climate Change discussion groups focusing on Human Health and Food Security, Drought Preparedness, Affordable Housing and Building Energy Use, Mobility, and Jobs and Economy.
