

List of additional edits found by staff – 2.13.17

1. It has come to staff attention that Dwelling Unit Signs are only allowed in the Residential and Multifamily Residential Districts, but could be applied to residences with O-1 and higher zoning along major streets. (page 22)
2. Staff has suggested that 20 Square Feet for O-1 is for a site and not per tenant. This has created problems. Staff suggested allowing 40 Square Feet along arterials and collectors. (page 25)
3. Staff suggested we allow Access Point signs for nonresidential uses in the Residential Category, Multifamily Residential Category, and Non-Residential Category. (page 22 and 35)
4. In section 7A.10.2.C.2.a.1, replace the table for the Minimum setback from curb to leading edge of sign with, “2 times the sign height.” (page 28-29)