ATTEMPT TO IDENTIFY BANK ROBBERY SUSPECT 555 NORTH WILMOT ROAD

At approximately 3:28 p.m. on November 14, 2011, the Tucson Police Department received a 911 call reporting that a robbery had occurred at the Wells Fargo Bank located at 555 North Wilmot Road. Officers from Operations Division East arrived within 4 minutes of being dispatched to the location. Neither the victim teller nor any other employees or customers of the bank were injured during the incident.

Detectives from the Robbery Unit responded to assist with the investigation. They collected evidence and interviewed several witnesses at the scene. Initial information indicates that a male entered the bank and approached the teller station. The male lifted his shirt, showing the teller a handgun that was tucked into the waistband of his pants. He then demanded that the teller give him money. The male was given an undisclosed amount of money before he exited the bank. He was last seen running westbound on foot from the bank.

The male was described as Caucasian, in his late 20s to mid-30s, 5'10"-6'00", 180-190 lbs, unshaven and wearing a mustache. He was last seen wearing a white long sleeved shirt under a black short sleeved t-shirt with white skulls on it, loose gray pants, black tennis shoes, and a gray "beanie" type hat. The Tucson Police Department is seeking the public's assistance in identifying and locating the robbery suspect. Anyone with information reference his identity and/or whereabouts are urged to call 911 or 88-Crime.

Please see below for surveillance images of the suspect.
