From the Chief

There are many fine law enforcement agencies throughout Southern Arizona; however, I challenge you to be a part of major city policing. The Tucson Police Department offers a variety of calls, opportunities, engagement with your community, and solving community issues using technology and innovative methods.

I'm a Tucson native, have been a member of this department more than 20 years, and am invested in our community. I embrace public partnerships with the community, I honor the need to protect life and property, while preventing crime, and resolving problems.

Come join me and my team as we become the change to make a difference in OUR community.

Chief Chad Kasmar

Explorers Post #180

The Tucson Police Department Explores Post #180 have been serving the City of Tucson and the surrounding community since 1967. The program offers young women and men an opportunity to challenge themselves.

As an Explorer, you will attend community service events, participate in ride alongs in the field, and compete in Explorer Competitions. You will receive defensive tactics training, learn drill techniques/ceremonial procedures. Explore your future in law enforcement as a Tucson Police Department Explorer!

Dedicated to Tucson

Modern policing is about trying new things, constantly learning, evolving, and engaging with the community. To meet this challenge, we foster diverse partnerships with a wide range of organizations and people from throughout the city.

Our approach requires people who are ready and willing to make a difference and effect change through sincere connections with our community.
